

I am disturbed by Sinclair's forcing its affiliates to show political propaganda just weeks before the election. These television stations are using what should be publicly owned airwaves to promote a specific political party with which they have financial ties, a perfect example of abuse of public airwaves. If these stations show "Stolen Honor," a blatantly anti-Kerry advertisement, they should be forced under law to offer equal time to the democratic candidate. This blatant partnership between large media corporations and politicians should be tightly regulated and disallowed by the FCC.
